Want more information? Check out our World Wide Web site at <http://www.netage.com>. It is amazing how suddenly prevalent this new form of address is.

Our place on the web reflects our vision of a better working world through better ways to work together. On the site you will find information about:

- ? Virtual teams, teamnets, and networks;
- ? The Networking Institute, our small business;
- ? Our own experience as speakers and consultants; and
- ? Our network of partner organizations.

Soon online Web books will become a common complement to today's three-ring team handbooks. If you are in this vanguard, you will find material here that you can reference in your own Web book, making the link as close as a click away.

More information is also available to you through the traditional publishing medium. If you find this book on virtual teams insightful, useful, or otherwise enjoyable, you will find even more in our companion books on teamnets and networks, The Age of the Network and The Team-Net Factor. Finally, we encourage you to contact us directly with your virtual team story at: virtualteams@netage.com.
